And if there is perception, it is wrong, too. The Justice Integrity Act would establish a 5-year pilot program to create an advisory group in 10 United States judicial districts headed by the U. S. attorney for those districts. The advisory groups would consist of Federal and state prosecutors, public defenders, private defense counsel, judges, correctional officers, victims rights representatives, civil rights organizations, business reps, and faith-based organizations, the gamut. The advisory groups would be responsible for gathering data on the presence, cause and extent of racial and ethnic disparities at each stage of the criminal justice system. Each advisory group would then recommend a plan, specific to each district, to ensure progress toward racial and ethnic equality. The U. S. attorney would consider the recommendations of the group, adopt a plan, and submit a report to the attorney general. The bill would require the attorney general then to submit a comprehensive report to Congress at the end of the pilot program, out-lining the results of all 10 districts and recommending best practices. I would like to emphasize two of the bills most important elements. First, it envisions an inclusive process that brings together all of the relevant stakeholders, both sides of the bar, all people involved. Second, by establishing advisory groups throughout the country, it recognizes different communities may face different problems and require different solutions. Just as Justice Brandeis talked about the beauty of laboratories of democracy in different states, you get a...
